

NOW LOOK OUT FOR

- Superluxury creams The latest innovation from Estée Lauder is an expensive cream that will be launched this autumn, using ground-breaking, ultrarefined technology. This is destined to take skincare into a whole new sophisticated – and pricey – level.
- More Botox/collagen/peels substitutes This September, Chanel is set to launch a trio of creams that mimic the effects of Botox, collagen and chemical peels. The continued success of Botox-like creams, such as Freeze 24/7 (a bestseller in Space NK) and the new Natralox, is destined to continue for the rest of the year.

- Fans of the winners should watch for new additions to Eve Lom's skincare that will hit counters this month, including a moisturiser with SPF, a hand cream and a cuticle cream. A new perfumed bodycare line from Prada will launch in September, too.

Thanks to all of you for voting for your favourite products. Fifty readers picked at random will receive a Style goodie bag containing beauty products, and one reader, plus a partner, will receive a night at The Berkeley hotel and makeovers with Style's Beauty Director, Bethan Cole, and Wardrobe Mistress, Claudia Craft.
